Red Cove bar, located at 1809 E. Main Street. The bartender Isis Godin, age 33 was cited and released for 25658(a) Business and Professions code – Sales of Alcohol to a minor.

The Ventura Police Department reminds you that it is illegal to furnish alcohol to any one under the age of twenty one. There are numerous special events and celebrations scheduled this holiday weekend here in Ventura and within our county. We urge everyone to enjoy the events and take a firm stance to not furnish alcohol to any minors.

Furnishing alcohol to minors could result in the following:

Arrest: It is illegal to furnish alcohol to persons under 21 years of age. Selling and/or furnishing alcohol to a minor is a misdemeanor offense and violators are subject to a $1000 fine.

Underage drinking consequences: Increased risk of physical and sexual assaults, risky sexual behavior, drug use, alcohol poisoning and more.

Affect on our community: alcohol related injuries such as deaths from motor vehicle accidents or suicides. Disruptive behavior such as disturbing the peace and vandalism.

Let's keep our community safe and healthy by keeping alcohol out of the hands of minors.

Funding for this programs was provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Officer Bernadette Compean is our Department's Alcohol Enforcement Officer and supervised the operation. She is also in charge of the Responsible Retailer Program, which is a program to improve public health and safety in our community by increasing the awareness of the dangers that result from improper sales and service of alcoholic beverages, particularly to minors and those who may already be intoxicated. The Ventura Police Department, in conjunction with other county agencies and organizations, provides alcohol beverage establishments with responsible beverage sales and service training. Officer Compean oversees all Alcohol Beverage Control (ABC) licenses and alcohol sales permits within the City of Ventura.
