Lot depth and widths are the measurement at the middle of the lot.

Percentage requirements include all covered areas, such as second story projections, patio roofs, entry covers, balconies, etc.

Heights are measured from the vertical distance above the average established curb grade in front of the lot to the highest point of the roofline, including parapets, screen walls, or roof-mounted equipment.

For corner lots, the front property line is the narrowest street frontage, the longest property line being the street side yard.
