Written Comments	I was a member of HPC years ago and most applicants wanted to preserve the significant style of their building, with the other criteria being the place of a significant person's residence or the place of a significant event there. These buildings constitute the physical embodiment of the history of the city, which exemplifies the written record. HPC preserves what of our history the public can see and enjoy and contemplate. HPC should be a fully staffed committee with each position filled, with attention to public members with a background in So Cal history, architecture, and Ventura personages. (We have had two of our houses designated landmarks.) 1429 needs to be designated an Historical Resource, mainly for its style and age and the recall of what houses in the hills looked like and how they were situated. Removing this house from its large perch and its original location is not gain to the community but destruction of what planning and development was in Ventura's recent past.

Agenda item 12A- Support and retain the historical significance of 1429 Poli Street, especially in this location adjacent to Cemetery Park. There are many contractors who do restoration of older homes in Ventura. Our residences value these homes and move to Ventura because of the charm and character here.

I disagree with the Pasadena based consultant, and agree with our local HPC. In Pasadena there are a slew of prominent historic homes, and this one may not meet their caliber, but we in Ventura have demolished many beautiful historic properties over the years. Ventura has a history of destroying its history, so please preserve what we have here in our town.

I have seen many a "compromised" homes restored in Ventura and SB. Many General Contractors specialize in this work. They may gut and change the interior to work for today's living all while saving the home exterior. On older homes, I have seen, funky additions removed, and improved additions to the original home added back on. This home has the potential for its charm and integrity to be restored!

Units could be added along the alley way, but please don't allow the destruction of this modest historical home and the "sense of place" it gives to the area.

Agenda item 13A - Please support the DRC and HPC to remain empowered to review and improve Ventura development. These commissions give an opportunity to give the public a voice. They encourage the builder to do a better project which complements our community.

All the Best,
Cherie Egbert
